Charging Daniel J. Sully, of New York with plagiarism in connection with his cotton warehousing scheme which was de clared to have been originated by Mr Tompkins, of Charlotte, N. C., and aver-ring that the former "cotton king" was not the proper man to finance a big concern, John Hays Hammond, the special ambassador of the United States to the coronation of their British majesties, yesterday afternoon continued his testinony in defense of the $1,500,000 damage suit for alleged defamation of characte brought by Sully.

Mr. Hammond specially emphasized the fact that Mr. Sully was without means and that his expenses in his effort to ote the newly patented cotton gir of Willard D. Doremus or sell the same were borne by him (Hammond). The clared that at one time during Mr. Sully's activities to finance the concern he "sat down" on Mr. Sully and prevented him from selling one single share of stock, saying: "If I were interested in the sale of mines, and if I were to derive very large profits by their sale, and it any time before the payment of the anney I should discover the property be worthless I should notify purchase."

Cancellation of Authority. The hearing took place before Chan-cery Examiner Harper in Attorney Gittings office and Mr. Hammond sought to explain his alleged cancellation of Sully's authority to sell the patents upon which Sully bases his damage suit, de claring such action injured his profes-sional reputation. Mr. Hammond sub-mitted a number of letters and cablegrams bearing upon his relations with grams bearing upon his relations with Sully in the controversy.

In answer to Attorney Gittings ques-tion whether he had not sent Mr. Sully a cablegram on March II, 1910, Mr. Ham-mond replied in the affirmative. The original cablegram was produced, read-ing: "Preliminary report Kidder-Pea-body sufficiently favorable to justify them making further examination which have are proceeding to do us they wish them making further examination which they are proceeding to do as they wish to acquire European rights, regard them more valuable than American rights. They distinctly refuse American rights without European rights. Think you had better make tentative arrangement with English parties subject to your approval on your return here. Kidder-Peabody say they can make better terms in England than we can."

Being asked by Attorney Gittings with regard to a test made with the Doremus gin. Mr. Hammond said he was not a cotton expert, and that he had never seen a commercial gin in his life.

Hirseh Syndicate Meeting.

With regard to Mr. Sully meeting the members of the Hirsch syndicate in Paris, with whom he was seeking to make arrangements for the sale of the gin patents, Mr. Hammond sald:

"I fully realized that the Hirsch syndicate had been clients of mine for many years and had credited me with good business sense, which in this case, however, was wrong."
All through his testimony Mr. Ham-mend tried to convey the impression that he had been misled by Mr. Sully with regard to the real merit of the gin. which he found out upon examination by experts to have been unduly overby experts to have been unduly over-rated.

Mr. Hammond said that his recollec-tion is that the Foremus gin of 199 is far superior to any Whitney gin; that he did not make estimates, not heing a cotton expert; that he tried to keep his eyes open, and ears, too, and that he saw it run for about an hour, saw that Mr. Sully manipulated the fiber, which, he said was extraordinarily lone; that he said, was extraordinarily long; that the Doremus experts said that the gin had no larger capacity than the Whitney gin, and that the staple was no better." Attorney Gittings had considerable difficulty in getting Mr. Hammond's reply to a question about the comparative merits of the Whitney and the Doremus gin, and Mr. Hammond said, with a show of spirits.

lid he exhibit to you a contract be had nade with the Hirach syndicate?"

Mr. Hammond did not remember. The original contract was produced and shown to Mr. Hammond and he was asked whether he had seen it. He replied "he probably saw it." Mr. Hammond's attention being called to a callegram by Mr. Sully in which the word "success" was used, said that Mr. Sully went to Europe to sell certain rights to blegram by Mr. Sully in which the word success" was used, said that Mr. Sully went to Europe to sell certain rights to the Hirsch syndicate, and that on May 16, 1910, he cabled, "Success, will be able to give you full particulars on my return." Mr. Hammond said he thought this meant a complete success, and not a success contingent and dependent upon the examination of experts.

Letter Shows Attitude. ollowing letter of Mr. Hamm to Mr. Baker, of London, in which Mr

Hammond's attitude is stated, was of-April 18, 1910.

W. Baker, London: "I have seen Sully, who has just re turned from England and have discussed with him Doremus gin matters. When I cabled you I was under the impres-I cabled you I was under the impression that Sully was about to make a definite agreement invoiving the payment of some considerable money before further investigation by your experts. In view of the unsatisfactory tests that were made at the time I cabled you, there was nothing eise for me to do but to acquaint you with the facts of the case and to let you know that in my opinion the gin was still in an experimental stage. Sully contends that the experiments were conducted by men who were not competent to express an opinion, and I am inclined to think there are some good grounds for his contention, although I am free to admit that the subject is one upon which I can express no opinion worthy of consideration. I had the gin examined by first-class experts before the last examination was made. The experts who made the first examination I am inclined to think were more competent to express an opinion than those who made the first examination at least as to certain crucial features of the gin. The first opinion was decidedly favorable.

"I have decided to have two gins built on my own account during the time of your option, which, with the gin you intend building, should enable us to definitely determine the commercial value of the Doremus gin. sion that Sully was about to make a defi-intend building, should enable us to definitely determine the commercial value of the Doremus gin.

"I do not wish you to have any idea that there is any objection on my part to having your people associated with me in this business, but I was actuated solely by the desire to prevent any misconception on your part and the possible loss of money by you. Sincerely yours, "JOHN HAYS HAMMOND."

resolution to pay Mr. Suny's Sunthern trip penses.

Referring to Mr. Sully's Southern trip in the interest of the cotton warehousing scheme. Mr. Hammond raid that Mr. Sully had plagarized this scheme; that Mr. Tompkins was the originator of the same, and that, furthermore, he (Hammond) had received a letter from a gentleman down South saying that Mr. Sully was not the man to finance an enterprise of such magnitude. Attorney Gittings requested Mr. Hammond to produce proof of his assertions, which Mr. Hammond promised to do

Conservatives' Ticket.

The anxiously awaited ticket of the conservative party was made public last night, and inquiry among the delegates seemed to point out the fact that it was generally regarded as a strong one, and one well worth awaiting. While the Dis-trict was well represented on the Dis-trict committee, it had names on it which represented the conservative ele-ment in various sections of the country. The ticket follows:

President general, Mrs. William Cum-ming Story, of New York.

Vice president general, in charge of organization chapters, present incumbent, Mrs. Miranda B. Tulloch, of the District

Chaplain general, Mrs. W. E. Callen-Chaplain general, Mrs. W. E. Callen-der, of South Carolina and Virginia. Recording secretary general, Mrs. Frank Bond, District of Columbia. Correspondent secretary general, Mrs. William A. Smoot, of Birginia.

It will be noticed that the conservatives have accorded the much talked of "courtesy second term" to "the two national officers. Miss Pierce and Mrs. Tulloch, and would have nominated Mrs. Willis and Miss Wilcox had the nominations not been declined beforehand.

Miss Pierce and Mrs. Tulloch were not named on the administration ticket, although a "courtesy term" is one of the strongest slogans of the Scott party, and dreds of smiling, admiring Daughters who grasped her hand at the reception last night in her honor by the State regent and other. New York Daughters spells victory for the popular New York candidate. The reception was one of the brilliant events of the congress, and the red drawing-room of the New Willard was packed to the doors. Mrs. Scott, president general, had received an invitation, but she declined to attend because of a previous engagement. For three hours Mrs. Story greeted the Daughters, who extended in a line farbeyond the outer doors of the room.

Mrs. Donald McLean, former president general, made a speech in which she said the invitation to the reception purposely left an ambiguous line, which made it appear "as if every Daughter in New York State" was to be considered in the invitation to honor Mrs. Story. Mrs. Joseph S. Wood, State regent of New York, promptly answered Mrs. McLean, in which she said "members of the D. A. R. in New York; did not mean every did not mean every did not mean every.

The annual meting of the Braducts Trail committee was held in the New Jersey room Monday afternson. Mrs. Croxall, chairman, reported that her efforts to have the trail marked, begun a little more than a year ago, when she asked Fennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia to aid Maryland in this work. She has received much encouragement. Report were heard from Mrs. Stone, showing thorough investigation into the exact route taken by Gen. Braddock from Georgetown to Cumberland. A report from Mrs. Foster, who has made an exhaustive study of the Potomac route, which covers the Braddock Trail, was most interesting. Gen. Braddock marched from Georgetown to Cumberland, where he lost his life when surprised by the Indians and French.
